The Lonely Sunday Releases "Goodnight Aurora" as Title Track to Award-Winning Short Film "Infinitely"

Indie-pop sensation The Lonely Sunday, led by Cairns FM 89.1 presenter Joel Devereux, unveils their latest single, "Goodnight Aurora," serving as the title track to the locally produced short film "Infinitely." The song marks the debut of acclaimed Cairns High singer Grace Jones and has garnered over 15,000 streams within its first week of release, captivating audiences worldwide.

Crafted to complement the visual and emotional depth of "Infinitely," "Goodnight Aurora" takes listeners on a captivating journey through themes of love, loss, and the beauty found in life's fleeting moments. Grace Jones's soulful vocals add an enchanting layer to the song, resonating with audiences and enhancing the film's narrative.

Released on April 23rd, "Goodnight Aurora" has swiftly gained acclaim for its poignant lyrics and mesmerising melodies, solidifying The Lonely Sunday's reputation as masters of indie-pop storytelling. Joel Devereux expressed his excitement about the project, stating, "Collaborating on 'Goodnight Aurora' and seeing it become the heart of 'Infinitely' has been an incredible journey. When I wrote the film, I didn't expect to get such a response to the song."

Directed by Joel Devereux, "Infinitely" has received praise last year's Understory Film Festival winning Best Narrative. The synergy between The Lonely Sunday's music and the film's narrative underscores the power of collaboration in creating immersive cinematic experiences.

As "Goodnight Aurora" continues to captivate listeners, The Lonely Sunday remains committed to crafting emotive music that resonates deeply with audiences. With its soul-stirring melodies and heartfelt lyrics, "Goodnight Aurora" stands as a testament to the band's artistic vision and dedication to excellence.
